The people carrier is losing its appeal on the new car market as motorists switch to crossovers. When new, the five or seven-seater offered a lot for the money, and steep depreciation means you get even more bang for your buck secondhand.

Look beyond the awkward styling, and you'll find a comfy car with plenty of space. History The original Carens went on sale in the UK in 2000, with this MkII car arriving in autumn 2006. From the outset, there were 2.0litre petrol or diesel engines, with five or six-speed manual gearboxes respectively. However, the diesels had the option of a four-speed automatic, too, and from March 2008 this box was also offered on the newly introduced 2.0 LS. The only other developments during the Carens' seven-year lifespan were the introduction of a 1.6 petrol engine in February 2009 and the launch of a 126bhp 1.6 CRDi diesel in January 2010. Alternatives The Carens competes against some talented cars, not least the Vauxhall Zafira. This versatile, well-equipped seven-seater is cheap and in plentiful supply, and ideal for the budget-conscious. Buyers wanting a sportier drive will love the Ford SMAX, which is spacious and readily available. However, it's a big car and can be expensive to run. The Toyota Verso and VW Tiguan are more costly than the Kia, but they're solidly built and come with some strong engines. If your focus is on value, check out the Renault Scenic and Grand Scenic, plus the Citroen C4 Picasso, which offer great versatility at a tempting price. All rights reserved. The Rondo made its public debut at the 2006 Los Angeles International Auto Show, with the 2007 models North American sales debut in December, 2006 in Canada and early 2007 in the United States. In Australia, sales commenced April 2008. Sales rapidly declined in the 2009 model year and never recovered. In Australia, it is only available as a seven-passenger vehicle with a 2.0L four-cylinder engine and a choice of an automatic or manual transmission, depending on trim level.

The V6 was Kia's last engine to use a timing belt instead of a timing chain. Sales began in March 2013 in South Korea. The Carens is offered in either 5-seat or 7-seat configurations.
